

Track 2 | Integrated Planning for Holistic Solutions

Workshop #3 Agenda

Tuesday, September 28th, 1:00 - 3:00 PM

Effective Regional Planning & Collaboration

The landscape-level impacts of climate change do not recognize the political boundaries and sector-based silos that adaptation practitioners must often operate within. Recognizing the importance and benefits of regional collaboration, many communities and jurisdictions are working together to share information, develop plans, and implement solutions at the regional scale. This workshop will highlight examples of effective multijurisdictional planning and regional collaboration, as well as key tools and resources to support regional efforts. Participants will engage in a series of discussions to explore the big elephants in the room: how do we define regions; what is the ideal role of regional climate collaboratives, who should be leading regional planning; and how do we hold ourselves accountable to advance regional priorities?

1:00 | Welcoming Remarks

1:05 | Presentations / Q&A

- Multijurisdictional Planning
- Regional Collaboration Beyond Information Sharing
- Regional Planning Tools and Resources

1:45 | Stretch Break

1:50 | Large Group Engagement

Participants will engage in polling exercises and share examples of successful regional collaboration, as well as tools and resources to support ongoing collaboration.

2:00 | Small Group Breakout Discussions

Participants will engage in a series of breakout discussions to explore key questions to improve and strengthen regional collaboration and planning:

- How should a “region” be defined (e.g. watershed, jurisdictional boundaries, cultural identity, etc.)?
- Who should be leading regional planning? And what authorities are needed to tackle climate adaptation?
- What is the ideal function of regional collaboratives and how do we get there? What would we see as indicators of success?
- How do we hold ourselves and others accountable to engage in and advance regional adaptation efforts?

2:50 | Report Out & Closing Remarks

3:00 | Adjourn
